MISSIONARY REPORT, &c.

To the Generous Subscribers, who have contributed towards the Support of the Missions carried on by the Methodist Conference, and to the Benevolent Public at large.

BELOVED BRETHREN, AND RESPECTED FRIENDS,

WE trust, that on your perusal of the annual Report, which is now presented for your inspection, you will not only discover that God has been graciously pleased to revive his work in several of our missionary departments, but that you will be induced to join with us in thanking him for these signal mercies. In several of the old places, in which the work has been apparently at a stand for a considerable time, many souls have lately been added to our societies; by which it is evident, that the good seed that has been sown in former years, was taking root, at a time when we thought it was wholly lost. We now plainly perceive, that one man soweth, and another reapeth; and we hope to learn from hence, not to despair of ultimate success, although many years may occasionally elapse, before we discover much fruit of our labour. In our missionary endeavours, as well as in our individual dependance upon God, we must walk by faith and not by sight; and, like Abraham of old, even against hope believe in hope. For all such exercises of faith, we have found ourselves amply repaid.

Since our last annual statement, several new places have been attempted by our missionaries, and even in these, we already find that our attempts have not been made in vain. On the whole, our prospects of usefulness were never more flattering, or more extensive.

To the pleasing tidings which we thus receive from the West Indies, we hope ere long to be able to add some from the East, since in these populous regions, we hope shortly to make an attempt to spread the Redeemer's name. In our vast possessions in Asia, the inhabitants are not only living without hope and without God in the world, but they worship the most detestable idols, and practise the most abominable rites. These practises have so far brutalized their manners, and sunk them so low in the scale of rationality, that they exhibit human nature even in its lowest state of degradation.

We must not, however, forget, that as Jesus Christ tasted death for all, the souls of these poor outcasts were the objects of redeeming love. The preaching of the Gospel is the channel through which he makes his salvation known; and in this Gospel we are assured, that he hath committed to his Ministers the word of reconciliation. We feel it, therefore, our duty to visit these benighted parts, particularly the Island of Ceylon, in the British dominions of which we have reason to believe there are not less than 500,000 Professors of Christianity, and about a million of Pagans. We fear, however, that the Professors of Christianity are little more than nominal. But these, since they believe the Gospel, and have something of the form of godliness, will be induced, we hope, to seek after and to enjoy its power. We trust that among these, God will make our ministry a blessing, as he has made it among the Negroes in the West Indies. And if these receive the grace of God in their hearts, by faith, we may then hope that the poor idolaters, seeing their good works, may be also inclined to turn unto God.

In prosecuting this important undertaking, many trials, we expect, will await us; and many obstacles we must prepare to encounter; but to these in some measure we are already inured. Hitherto God has befriended us in a remarkable manner, and caused even opposition to further our designs. His promises are still the same; and in these we hope to put our trust, well knowing from past experience, which the following statement will shew, that he will not suffer us to confide in him in vain.

I. ANTIGUA.

Soon after our last Report was published, we heard with some concern that our flourishing society in this place had experienced some of those evils which arise from discord; but we have since learnt with much pleasure, that the wound was healed, and that peace had been again established, and more than 100 members have been added to our Society in this Island in the last year.

One of our Missionaries made an effort to introduce the Gospel among the inhabitants of Barbuda, a small Island lying in the vicinity of Antigua; and his endeavours seemed to meet with the cordial approbation of the people. But, unhappily, the death of an only daughter compelled him to return to Antigua sooner than he intended. Sometime afterwards he paid Barbuda another visit, and was received with the greatest cordiality. In this place he baptized 103, and formed a society of 56 Members, leaving 17 more on trial.

In Antigua our congregations are large, well-behaved, and truly respectable. Religion seems to rise in the estimation of the more opulent and powerful; nor is this a matter of wonder, as they must witness the happy effects which it has produced in the slaves. And although they hesitate to join our societies, notwithstanding they attend the preaching of our Missionaries, we have reason to believe that several among them are seeking the salvation of their souls. The total number in connexion with us, amounts to 2,402, of whom no more than 24 are Whites.

II. ST. CHRISTOPHER'S.

In this Island the work of God still continues to flourish, notwithstanding those occasional evils, which are inseparable from this imperfect state of things. In general, the planters who perceive the advantages resulting from our mission, are friendly to it, and we have nothing to fear from the legislative power. We have now preaching in several places throughout the Island, in all of which our congregations are larger, better behaved, and more respectable, than the most sanguine, a few years since could have reasonably expected. It is now nearly as singular to find disturbance in a congregation, as it was once to go through the whole service without interruption. For these changes we desire to be truly thankful to God.

Nor is it merely among the people that compose our congregations, that religion is become respectable. Many of those who are in society adorn the profession which they make, and thus furnish the most indubitable evidence that they really enjoy the power of divine grace in their hearts. Of this power, they occasionally speak with such artless simplicity, as sets the powers of artificial oratory at defiance. According to our last returns, the society amounts to 2,162, of whom 30 are Whites.

III. NEVIS.

In our Report for 1811, the condition of this Island was stated to be deplorable. This we attributed to the death of a Missionary, which left the Society unprovided and unprotected. In 1812, when another Missionary had arrived, our prospects seemed to brighten, through the restoration of order, the re-establishment of the society, and the increase of the congregations. This year, blessed be God, the happy effects which we anticipated, have been experienced. We have seen with pleasure, multitudes flocking to the standard of the cross, like doves to the windows for safety; and many have found redemption in the blood of Christ.

From the success which had taken place in the town, our Missionary made an attempt to carry the sound of the Gospel to the windward part of the Island, which had never been visited by any of his predecessors. In this place, the success of the Gospel has been very great. "Our prospects here, (says our correspondent,) are truly flattering. Many are receiving, with all readiness of mind, the truth as it is in Jesus. The change produced in this place, by the preaching of the Gospel, is to many a matter of wonder." In this part of the Island, which is exceedingly populous, a chapel has been lately erected, and we trust that, although of short continuance, the work has obtained a greater degree of permanency than is to be found in many towns, in which the offers of salvation have been more frequently made. On the whole, the mission in Nevis is in a flourishing condition. Scarcely a week elapses without an increase of numbers in the society, the members of which in general are growing in grace. In our last Report the total number in Society was stated to be 882. These are now augmented to 1,290, notwithstanding several have died, and many more have been expelled for improper conduct during the year.

IV. ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S.

It is with peculiar pleasure that we find the work of God in a flourishing condition in this island, notwithstanding the many impediments which conspired to obstruct it. Some of these impediments have been occasionally mentioned, in connexion with the effects which they have negatively produced. During the last year, order and harmony have been re-established, and the work of God has regained its originally prosperous state. Many who once ran well, but whom Satan had for some time hindered, have again rallied round that sacred standard which they had been tempted to desert, and several others have united themselves to our society, and we trust also to the Lord. The number of our members at this time amounts to 378, of whom 8 only are Whites. We consider, however, that in this place the work is at present only in its infancy, and we have much reason to be thankful that on the whole it is in a state which is so prosperous. We trust that its stormy season is nearly past; so that we look forward with more sanguine expectations, and with brighter hopes, than this island has afforded for several years.

V. TORTOLA, AND THE OTHER BRITISH VIRGIN ISLANDS.

There are not many islands in the West Indies, in which religion has, on the whole, met with a more favourable reception than in Tortola and its dependencies. Our readers must not, however, imagine that prosperity has uniformly favoured the cause of God in the Virgin Islands. Opposition follows vital religion, just as a shadow accompanies its substance; and in general it is most formidable where the progress of the gospel is most conspicuous. Various are the ways in which the enemy of souls attempts to distress the professors of godliness; so that without constant watchfulness, and dependance upon God, it is impossible that they should be able to withstand his wiles. During the last year, some circumstances of an unpleasant nature have occurred in these islands, which we fear have retarded the progress of the work of God. We trust, however, that a change more favourable to the interests of Christ, has taken place; and that the progress of his cause has been again renewed. In some of the little settlements which are connected with Tortola, our Societies are in a flourishing condition, as it respects numbers; and in all, many souls are truly alive to God. Throughout the whole of this department, the success of the Gospel is exceedingly conspicuous; and in the aggregate, a considerable increase of numbers has taken place. In our last Report the total amount was stated at 2,176; these are now augmented to 2,933, so that we have an actual increase of 757 souls. Out of the total number 101 are Whites, the rest being a mixture of Coloured People and Blacks. Surely it is an unspeakable mercy that such multitudes of the poor Africans are thus induced to lay hold on the Saviour of the world.

VI. ST. THOMAS, AND THE OTHER VIRGIN ISLANDS LATELY CAPTURED.

As we have no Missionary established on these Islands, the inhabitants have no opportunity of hearing the doctrines which we preach, but the occasional labours of those who transiently visit them. These are but seldom, through the pressing calls of the people, who in other islands are regularly under the care of our Missionaries. We trust, however, that even in these captured Islands, there are many precious souls who love God. The number of these, we have reason to believe would be soon augmented, if the sound of the Gospel could be heard constantly among the inhabitants. But through that intolerant spirit which seems to be incorporated with the Danish laws, and which still continues in force, we have little reason to hope for any considerable success. At present we have a small society, of about 70 members, who, being left as sheep without a shepherd, are exposed to many dangers, from which we fear, some among them have suffered loss. We trust that our gracious God will, however, make many among them as lights in a benighted land, and use them as instruments to prepare the way for his ministring servants, when the Colonial Laws of those Islands shall cease to oppose the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

VII. ST. EUSTATIUS.

When we reflect on the awful visitation of Providence, which afflicted us during the last year in this island, we have reason to wonder at the prosperous state in which the work appears. In the month of February last, Mr. William Driver was appointed as a Missionary from St. Kitt's to this place. He reached it in safety on Friday, the 12th; preached once on the Sunday following; and then complained of a pain in his head, which was followed by a fever. Medical assistance was immediately called, but it was in vain. His complaint continued until Tuesday the 16th, on the night of which he exchanged time for eternity, and labour for reward. But notwithstanding God thus removed the instrument, he did not abandon his work. This has continued to prosper in such a degree, that the society is now nearly double to that of the preceding year. It then amounted to 246: it now is augmented to 406. We find, therefore, much reason to exercise both resignation and gratitude.

VIII. DOMINICA.

In this Island, as well as in most of the others, our Missionaries and our people are free from legal interruption. Roseau, and Prince Rupert's Bay, contain our principal societies. In some other places we have had occasional preaching, and the word has been attended with power, and the prospect of future success was pleasing. But, alas! the hurricane and earthquake that happened here on the 23d of July last, destroyed both our chapels; so that our Missionary and Society are totally destitute of any place for public worship. Our Society in this Island is very poor, and as our Missionary Fund is at present very low, we can afford them little or no assistance for the purpose of building; so that we fear that the Society will be scattered, and the work of God much interrupted.

However we hope that God will dispose the hearts of our opulent friends in this kingdom to help these strangers in distress. The number of members in Society are 710 Blacks.

IX. ST. VINCENT'S.

It may be said, with strict propriety, that in this Island the harvest is great, but the labourers are few. Every thing seems favourable to the cause of God. The civil power is friendly; the congregations are large, and in part composed of the most respectable inhabitants; the societies increase; and the Missionaries enjoy good health. From the spirit of hearing which prevails, more chapels and more preachers are wanted; and we doubt not, if a full supply could be procured, that religion would take a more extensive spread than we have yet been able to record in the history of this island. In the meanwhile it is with pleasure we can state, that with far the greater number of the members of the Society religion is something more than a mere profession. Many, both bond and free, enjoy the love of God; and, while diligent in the means of grace, continue to work out their own salvation with fear and trembling. It is nevertheless worthy of remark, that, although multitudes of all descriptions attend preaching, it is chiefly among the African race that the power of godliness is experienced. We have now, in our Societies, in St. Vincent's, 2,535; but out of all these, nine only are Whites.

X. BARBADOES.

Barbadoes exhibits an unpleasant contrast to St. Vincent's, although our efforts have not been less, nor our perseverance more remiss, in the one place than in other. In our last Report we stated, that the Governor had promised his protection against illegal interruptions, to which our congregations were exposed. This promise, we flattered ourselves, would have operated on the minds of the profligate with all the force of legal coercion. But in this we have found ourselves mistaken. Several interruptions and disturbances having taken place during the year, our Missionary found it necessary to adopt measures to bring the offenders to punishment. No sooner were steps taken towards a legal investigation of their conduct, than, aware of the consequences which they knew must follow, they solicited forgiveness. This was granted on condition of their making an acknowledgement of their offence, and begging pardon in the public papers. As soon as the advertisement appeared, the Governor, mindful of his promise, sent for our Missionary, and renewed his offer, requiring him at the same time, in case a similar disturbance should happen, not to settle the affair by compromise. Another occasion soon happened, and the Governor was made acquainted with it, and although the transgressors sued for mercy, his resolution was to persevere, in order to make them examples to others. The final issue of this affair has not yet reached us. It is plain, however, from hence, that the civil power, instead of being hostile to our mission, is exceedingly friendly towards it. During the last year an increase has taken place in the society. In our last Report the whole number was stated at 26; these are now augmented to 54; and we trust that the greater part are truly alive to God.

Generally speaking, the labours of our Missionary have been confined to Bridgetown, the capital of Barbadoes. It is true, that in several other places, openings have presented themselves, but local inconveniences have prevented us from embracing them. To travel into the country, a horse is necessary, and this cannot be either procured or kept without expence. And even if this difficulty could be overcome, it would be impossible for one man to pay proper attention to the country, without partially neglecting the town, in consequence of which the loss might be more than the advantage. To remedy this inconvenience two Missionaries must be introduced, besides the horse, which will unavoidably create an expence which neither the Society nor the Missionary fund at present can bear. We must, therefore, wait with patience, and leave events to God.

XI. GRENADA.

Our accounts from Grenada are not so full and circumstantial as could be wished, to enable us to lay before our readers a satisfactory Report of the work of God among the inhabitants. We have only one Missionary in this Island, nor is it in our power at present to support another, even if he could be furnished with full employment. In the country several places are open for his reception, and to some of these he pays occasional visits. Many, however, among the planters are by no means friendly to our cause; and no doubt they would readily oppose our endeavours to instruct the slaves, if their power were equal to their wishes. Hitherto, we have reason to bless God, the Governor has afforded us protection, and, under the sanction of his authority, we have enjoyed peace. Nevertheless, we do not perceive that rapid increase in our society, nor that visible progress of the cause of God, which we perceive in many other islands. The time, however, we hope will come when the prejudices which now predominate with many, will disappear before the preaching of the Gospel, and when those planters who are hostile, will favour the cause which they now seem anxious to suppress. These are effects which we have repeatedly witnessed in many other places; and we have equal reason to hope that similar effects may be produced in Grenada. We shall state the number of members in our society, as we did last year, at 106.

XII. TRINIDAD.

The work of God is going forward in this place, in a gradual, if not in a rapid manner. Through the influence of preaching, and the becoming deportment of those who profess to know God, prejudice is evidently on the decline throughout the Island, so that the hostilities which we have to encounter are less formidable than they once were. The removal of prejudice has been followed by an increase of the congregation, and a gradual augmentation of the society. On most of those who attend, a deep solemnity is to be perceived during the time of public worship, and few congregations listen with greater attention. Many of these have found, at times, that the word preached, has been accompanied with divine power to the salvation of their souls. "We have much cause for gratitude, (our Missionary observes,) for the great peace, love, and harmony which we enjoy, and also for some prosperity in our little Zion. Six of our dear little flock have died in the course of the last year, and, I trust, are safely lodged in Abraham's bosom. I have lately been shut out from one of our country places, through the exchange of the managers, but I have the promise of another in its stead. We can with joyful confidence say, that the work is taking deep root in the hearts of many. I sit with pleasure to hear them declare their experience, and can affirm with confidence, that they appear to be growing in grace." Through some mistake, the number of members was stated in our last Report to be 188, instead 138. They now amount to 160.

XIII. JAMAICA.

A spirit of hostility to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, still continues to manifest itself in Jamaica, but more especially in Kingston, to which place it is chiefly confined. In this town, through the operation of a municipal law, no preaching has been permitted for several years past. In the month of August, 1812, Mr. Wiggins, our Missionary, ventured to preach, which he did to very large and attentive congregations. The next day he was summoned to appear before the magistrates to answer for his offence. With this summons he complied, when the charge being proved against him, he was sentenced to suffer one month's imprisonment in the common jail. This punishment he has actually sustained for no other crime than that of preaching the glad tidings of salvation through Jesus Christ.

The imprisonment of Mr. Wiggins has, however, procured for him many friends, even among those, who, prior to that time, felt no interest in his welfare. The legal injustice with which he was imprisoned, operated with more force on the public mind than his persecutors seem to have anticipated; in consequence of which, he now finds advocates where he once found foes. To increase the stir which his imprisonment has occasioned, a dreadful hurricane, which was followed by a tremendous earthquake, has in no small degree contributed. These awful visitations have been considered with many, in the light of judgments which heaven has inflicted on a guilty land. Deeply impressed with sentiments which are closely connected with this conviction, multitudes have flocked to prayer meetings, which, being placed beyond the reach of the municipal law, have been established in various parts of the city. These have been attended with the most blessed effects to the souls of many; so that they prove rather more than a substitute for the public preaching of which they have been deprived. At Morant Bay, which was once the seat of persecution, the society is in a flourishing condition; and the congregations meet with no interruption. On many plantations we have an open door, which presents us with more places and people than we can possibly attend. On the whole, even amidst persecution, we have more reason for thankfulness than complaint. Our society has considerably increased during the last year; the number, which, on our preceding Report, amounted to 1217, being now augmented to 1723.

XIV. THE BAHAMA ISLANDS.

It is with much pleasure we can state, that our prospects in these islands are highly flattering. What we anticipated in our last Report, has, in a great degree, been realized in the months which followed it. The accounts which we received from these settlements, both in November, 1812, and in May, 1813, perfectly concur in the favourable statement which they give. According to these, religion in New Providence was in high repute; the congregations were large, respectable, and attentive; and the society was in a flourishing condition. Many members were added during the months which more immediately preceded last May; at which time the prospect of future success continued as blooming as ever.

At Wreck Sound, Tarpum Bay, and Savannah Sound, we have large and flourishing societies. In these places, which are but thinly peopled, nearly all the inhabitants have joined our society, among whom many have found redemption in the blood of Christ. These continue to bring forth the fruits of faith, and to witness to all, that they belong to the family of Heaven. From Eleuthera, where we have many precious souls, the mission has been extended to Governor's Harbour, and Pelmetto Point. In the former of these places, only a few seemed inclined to hear; but those who came, we have reason to believe, did not hear in vain. At Pelmetto Point the people, on the contrary, received the word with all readiness, and with much joy. Among those who heard, a society has since been formed, consisting of 26 persons, who seem in earnest for the salvation of their souls. Throughout the whole settlement of Eleuthera, the society increases both in number and in piety. Love seems to predominate in their hearts, and to have taught them that to live is Christ, and to die is gain. In our last Report the whole number in the Bahama's amounted to 505. These are now augmented to 703; and we have every reason to expect, that the number continues still to increase.

XV. BERMUDA.

Long had the inhabitants of Bermuda continued to sit in darkness, and in the shadow of death; and in the early periods of our mission, when an attempt was made to carry the sound of the Gospel among them, persecution raged with all its violence. A few years ago, Mr. Joshua Marsden visited this settlement, and was the happy instrument in the hand of God of establishing a society. His name is still precious to many who were much blessed by his ministry. His successors also share in the kindness of a grateful people, who receive with joy those who come to them in the name of the Lord.

At present many, both rich and poor, attend the preaching of our Missionary, and a door is opened for the reception of the Gospel in almost every parish throughout the Islands. But we are sorry to say, that there still are some persecutors. Some vile persons have repeatedly attempted to calumniate the character of our Missionary who labours there. But he has returned blessing for cursing, and by well-doing has put to silence the ignorance of foolish men; and we trust that the word of the Lord will be abundantly glorified.

In our last return the number in society was 134.

XVI. NOVA SCOTIA AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

During the last year we have received a pressing invitation from the society established at Montreal, to send them a Preacher from this country. Hitherto they have been supplied from the American Conference, but on account of their great distance, their being under the British government, and the war which has lately broken out, they rather wish for a connexion with us, than with their former connexion. We should have been exceedingly glad to comply with their requests, but local impediments at present forbid us. It appears that a lively and flourishing society exists in this northern region, so that the glorious gospel is extending towards both the poles.

In the district of Nova Scotia it does not appear that religion has made any considerable advances during the last year. In some places a declension has been visible, and in others it is to be feared, that our Missionaries have stretched forth their hands in vain. It must not however be forgotten, that through the scattered situation of the inhabitants, they have no opportunity of having regular preaching, as in most parts of England; and even when the opportunities occur, the severity of the weather, during the winter season, prevents many from attending. In the meanwhile it must not be omitted, that many precious souls are truly alive to God in every town in which we have a society. These are not only using diligence to make their calling and election sure, but they are providing for their posterity, by paying off those debts with which their chapels were encumbered. The difference in numbers between the last year and the present is inconsiderable : then they amounted to 1120, and now they are 1130.

XVII. NEWFOUNDLAND.

The work of God in Newfoundland, notwithstanding many disagreeable circumstances have occurred, has, of late, taken a most favourable turn. "In all our societies, (one of our Missionaries observes,) except Carbonear, there has been an outpouring of the Spirit. I believe, in the course of the last year there have been more souls savingly converted to God, than in any two former years since we came to this country, and many among those who know God, are making rapid progress in spiritual knowledge and holiness." Some time since our Missionaries were using every exertion to enlarge their field of action. In this they happily succeeded, and now their necessities are equally urgent how to get these places supplied with preaching. In several places new chapels have been erected, which are filled with numerous and attentive hearers. In others, chapels are now building, and in these, also, appearances are equally promising. With these enlivening prospects before us, we have much to hope from the success of our Missionaries, and nothing to fear from legal interruption. On the whole, our societies are on the increase, and we trust that their advances in piety, keep pace with their augmenting numbers. In a general view, the mission may be said to be in a prosperous condition. The members in society, if we connect those of Prince Edward's Island with those of Newfoundland, amount to 390 souls.

XVIII. SIERRA LEONE, IN AFRICA.

When we began this mission, we were well aware that we should have many difficulties to encounter ; but experience has convinced us, that they are more numerous, and more formidable, than we had been led to expect. It is, however, but just to state, that these difficulties have not arisen from the hostility of the laws, the persecuting spirit of the inhabitants, or the influence of other denominations. Rather they may be said to have arisen from the climate, the condition of the inhabitants, and the peculiar situation of our Missionaries and Teachers. We observed in our last, that we had heard, with much regret, the death of Mr. Warren, to whose care the superintendence of the mission was consigned; and we have now to note some of those effects which have resulted from this mysterious dispensation of Providence. The Lord was pleased to raise Mr. Raynar, one of the Schoolmasters, to the Pastoral Office; and, though inferior in talents to Mr. Warren, he gave much satisfaction. But for some particular reasons Mr. Raynar returned to England; and has since been appointed as a Missionary for the West Indies. Our two excellent Schoolmasters do all they can, by reading sermons and by exhortations, to supply the place of Mr. Raynar. We are now using every exertion to find a successor for Mr. Warren, but hitherto have not yet been able to succeed; and it is only till this can be accomplished, that we have reason to hope for great success.

In general the chapel is well attended; and the people who form the congregation behave with decency, and seem to be interested in what they hear. The times of public worship are Sunday morning, noon, and evening; Monday, Tuesday, and Friday evenings; together with public prayer meetings every morning at five o'clock. To attend these meetings, and regularly to superintend the schools, so far engross the time of our teachers, that no vacancies are left for them to visit the native tribes who live in the vicinity of the Colony. In Africa, as in the West Indies, the numbers in our societies are subject to many variations. Iniquity abounds in Sierra Leone, as well as in other parts of the world; in consequence of which, many who once ran well, turn aside from the holy commandment delivered unto them, and then leave us; while others, after repeated admonitions, we are obliged to expel. The number who remained faithful, according to our last account, amounted to 96.

Our African school may be said to be in a more prosperous condition than our society; nor is this a matter of surprize, since it has been exempted from those calamities which the society has sustained. On our school list we have 90 boys, of whom about 80 are general attendants. About 20 of these can read in the Testament, and 10 of these are learning arithmetic. A few are advanced so far as division, and are somewhat promising. "We begin in the morning, (says one of our teachers,) with reading a chapter and prayer, go out of school at noon with singing a hymn, and break up at night with singing and prayer. Besides teaching them the outward letter, we endeavour, as we are able, to instil into their minds the spiritual meaning thereof by argument, and we hope we may add by example. We enforce upon them strict morality, both in and out of school, at home and abroad. Our labours in this way, we have reason to believe, have not been altogether in vain, since we have seen the effect ourselves, and heard of it from others."

XIX. GIBRALTAR.

If we turn from Africa to the southern extremity of Europe, we shall find, that even here the Lord has not forgotten to be gracious. On this rock many precious souls may be found, who worship God in spirit and in truth, We must not, however, expect stability on this side the grave. The changes which are constantly taking place in a strong military fortress, sometimes remove the pious and introduce the wicked, through which the church suffers considerable diminutions. Independently of this circumstance, the alarming malady which has raged in this place for some months past, by carrying off multitudes of the inhabitants, has thinned our society in proportion to its numbers. These circumstances forbid us to expect such an increase of members as we may hope to behold in more favourable times. Our society at present consists of 87, who continue faithful, and work out their salvation with fear and trembling.

XX. IRISH MISSIONS.

As our Irish missions are closely connected with the various circuits in the vicinity of which they lie, we hope that a general statement will supersede the necessity of a particular detail. Indeed in many places, the numbers in the circuits include those which more immediately belong to the missions. Our Missionaries at first go forth into the highways, to invite sinners to Jesus Christ; and in proportion as they are successful, the places in which they have established preaching, are given up to our regular travelling preachers, who incorporate them in their respective circuits. As soon as this is done, the Missionaries again proceed to other places, in which the sound of the Gospel had been scarcely heard, and once more call sinners to repentance. According to this plan, which we have found to be exceedingly beneficial, it is not reasonable to suppose, that our numbers on the Irish Missions can ever admit of any considerable increase. In different places our Missionaries have been very successful during the last year, notwithstanding the innumerable difficulties they have had to combat, from the iniquity which prevails, and from the influence and inveteracy of the Romish Priests. In other parts, however, the fruits of their labours have been less visible, although we have no reason to think, that in any they have wholly spent their strength for nought. We trust on the whole, that this blessed work is owned of God in a most conspicuous manner, and we are induced to believe that thousands will rejoice in the last day, that ever this institution was established in the land. We have, at present, eight missions and nine missionaries, who regularly travel up and down preaching to the inhabitants, "in season and out of season," as opportunity offers, or a prospect of doing good appears. It is to these missions that we are in part indebted for the increase of '947, which took place in Ireland during the last year. But as these missionaries preach almost exclusively to people who are ignorant of God, of our discipline, and of themselves, and who have it not in their power to support them, their chief maintenance must be derived from the benevolence of those to whom we now appeal.

XXI. THE WELCH MISSIONS.

In a certain degree, the observations which have been made on the manner in which the Irish Missions are conducted, will apply with equal propriety to those of Wales. What once were Missions, now are circuits; and large societies at this moment flourish, where in former years the sound of the Gospel had scarcely ever been heard. It is to the establishment of these Missions, that we are indebted, under God, for several thousands of precious souls, who are ornaments to that religion which they profess. Still much, very much, remains to be done. Many thousands are still in the gall of bitterness, and in the bonds of iniquity. To them also is the word of this salvation sent, that they might be made wise to know the day of their visitation. In some places the work proceeds by slow and almost imperceptible advances; in others, the Sun of Righteousness shines forth with healing under his wings in a most conspicuous manner; but in all, we so far behold the goodness of God, that we have reason to adore the riches of his grace in all things. We trust, that we shall be enabled to persevere to the end; and that the glorious cause in which we are engaged, will continue to triumph until the earth is renewed in righteousness.

XXII. HOME MISSIONS.

It was stated in our last Report, that the design of these missions, was to carry the sound of the Gospel into those benighted villages and towns, which had not been visited by our regular preachers. That such missions should be necessary, may appear to many to be exceedingly strange; but such an opinion can only arise from their want of proper information on the subject. It is a melancholy fact, that in many places in this highly-favoured island, thousands of our fellow-creatures, and fellow-subjects, are at this moment living without hope and without God in the world. And if we look back to the time when these missions were first established, we shall find many districts of country in which the Gospel is now regularly preached, whose inhabitants were then in the same condition. Since the establishment of these missions, we have, through every year, been enabled to mark with pleasure the progressive advantages which have resulted from them. It is a glorious fact, that not less than fifty circuits, have been either augmented, or wholly formed, by means of these missions. And in numerous places, in which vice and immorality of the grossest kind once prevailed, we have now large congregations who regularly attend preaching, and flourishing societies, containing many precious souls that are truly alive to God.

From the nature of these missions, it cannot be expected that any regular number of members in our societies can be returned, because so soon as the mission has acquired any tolerable degree of permanency, the places, and the societies, become incorporated with those circuits which lie contiguous to them. It is on this account, that, generally speaking, the mission seems to disappear, in proportion as it is successful. In some places we have met with much opposition, and occasional interruption in preaching; but these interruptions have been rather transient than permanent. These have in general arisen from the rabble, who probably have been incited by men in power, who secretly employ them as instruments, while they are ashamed openly to avow their hostility to the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXIII. MISSION AMONG THE FRENCH PRISONERS.

Although in many departments of our missionary exertions, it has been our lot to follow the examples of others, there is one instance in which we have had the honour of leading the way, and this is the introduction of the Gospel among the French Prisoners of war. These men, through the unhappy commotions which have afflicted Europe during the last twenty years, have been confined in a state of close imprisonment, according to the laws of nations, for a considerable time; and in that confinement have been deprived of those means of grace, which all who are at liberty, may enjoy. Being deeply impressed with a conviction of their moral wretchedness, we made an application to the British government a few years since, for leave to introduce the Gospel among them. To this measure they acceded with the greatest readiness; and the facilities with which we have been favoured by government, in the execution of our intentions, must reflect on the British cabinet, a degree of honour which we doubt not, on some future day, even France herself will be ready to acknowledge.

In our first attempts, many obstacles presented themselves ; but in process of time these gradually declined, and in some places they may be said to be nearly overcome. At the same time it must be acknowledged, that in such places as we have but just attempted, we meet with occasional interruptions from the prisoners, to whom we wish to be rendered useful. These are impediments which we had reason to expect, and they were anticipated accordingly.

On the River Medway, there are ten prison ships, on board of which, we have about 1900 prisoners, who regularly attend preaching, among whom we have much reason to believe that preaching has been productive of the most salutary effects. Of these, we have given several instances in a former Report, which cannot but be pleasing to the serious reader ; and many more might now be added, if the limits of this Report would admit of such an enlargement. Both the officers and men seem sensible of our kind intentions towards them ; and they feel no scruple in testifying that sensibility, in acknowledgments of the most grateful kind.

In addition to the benefits which we have thus already seen resulting from the preaching of the Gospel, we have to record another advantage which we cannot but deem important. On board of the ten ships lying on the Medway, we have about 300 French lads who regularly attend the schools we have established among them. Many of these have already made such a proficiency, as to be able to read the Bible in French with great facility ; and we trust we may add, without hesitation, our full persuasion that several among them are not without feeling that sacred influence which it is calculated to impart.

Among the Prisoners in the Hamoaze, as our establishment has been less permanent, the good effects of our missions have not been altogether so conspicuous. Nor is this a matter of surprise. We have known, from long experience, that in such places in our own country, as have not heard the Gospel, it is the work of much time, labour, and perseverance, to induce the inhabitants to reflect with seriousness ; and it is a melancholy fact, that the morals of men are not much improved either in an army or a ship of war. Men in every country are much the same ; and national prejudices operate in all their force, when, to those who are imprisoned, instruction is first offered by the members of a hostile community. All these difficulties we anticipated before we began ; but although, in a measure, our fears have been realized, it is with pleasure we can add, that in several instances our hopes have been exceeded. Many have evidently received serious impressions, and we trust that some few souls have been converted to God. The effects which have resulted from the arrangements we have made, have, on the whole, been highly favourable, although we only view them as the harbingers of better days.

At Dartmoor Prison, in which several thousands are confined, we have made a few attempts; but our means of supporting the missionaries are unequal to the expences which must necessarily be incurred. We may truly say, on this interesting mission, that the harvest is plentiful, but the labourers are few; and the means of supporting them are still less. The ultimate success of this mission, and its final extent, must, under God, rest wholly with those to whom we appeal. We acknowledge your liberality to be great; but you plainly perceive from the statement which is now before you, that the necessities of the poor prisoners are still greater, and it is only from your additional exertions, that they can be supplied.

To form a proper estimate of this mission, we must look forward to a period, when peace shall visit the warlike nations of Europe. This period, a variety of prognostics seem to assure us, is not very remote. We trust, whenever it arrives, that those prisoners whom we now endeavour to instruct, being liberated from their confinement, will in a measure prepare the way for us to visit their country, with the sound of the Gospel. Being scattered throughout that populous empire they will naturally relate the events which occurred, while, in England, they remained prisoners of war; and among these it is unreasonable to suppose that the labours of our Missionaries will be forgotten. We can hardly anticipate a greater pleasure, than that which our future Missionaries will probably enjoy, when visiting the continental shores, to hear these prisoners declaring with gratitude to their friends and neighbours, "When sick and imprisoned in a foreign land, these men came and ministered unto us." We have seen greater things than these; and both faith and hope will lead us to expect that God may make this mission, which is now in its infancy, an instrument of introducing the pure Gospel into France. When this is realized, France will be regenerated indeed.

BELOVED BRETHREN, AND RESPECTED FRIENDS,

The statement which is now before you, may be said to furnish an epitome of our missions in Europe, Africa, and America. It also anticipates our intended voyage to Asia, which we hope will one day be added to our annual Report.

When you take the whole into one comprehensive view, it is obvious, that through the establishment of these missions, many thousands have been born of God, and that tens, if not hundreds of thousands, have had an opportunity of knowing in the day of their visitation, the things which belong to their peace. Nothing, in point of importance, can possibly equal the salvation of souls, whether they reside in the torrid or the temperate zones, or whether the bodies which they inhabit, are covered with a skin that is white or black.

You very well know that our Missionaries cannot prosecute their arduous tasks without support; and that many who are able, both in this Kingdom and the West Indies, will not contribute. Under God, our grand appeal is, therefore, made to you, who, having in different degrees experienced the value of religion, well know how to estimate its importance to others. We, therefore, beseech you, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to contribute to the utmost of your power towards the support of this blessed work in which we are thus engaged.

We are fully persuaded, that if Jesus, who died to redeem us, were personally to go from door to door, and solicit your aid, not one to whom we appeal would refuse his request. The case is now exactly the same, only he employs his servants to carry on his blessed work, by the use of those means which are of his own appointment. We, therefore, pray you in Christ's stead, to be reconciled to God, and to use your endeavours to promote the reconciliation of others.

We have too much confidence in your long-tried benevolence, to think you will suspect us of acting from selfish or pecuniary motives. We hope that our example, if not our declarations, will exempt us from so foul a charge; and induce you to believe, that whatsoever you bestow, is given to the cause of Jesus, who has declared, that you shall in no wise lose your reward.

Voluntary contributions have been the pecuniary instruments which God has invariably employed, to propagate vital christianity, from the period of its establishment to the present hour. This plan is congenial with the nature of the Christian dispensation—"freely we have received, freely therefore we must bestow." What would have been our intellectual and moral condition, had it not been for the benevolence of our ancestors? Sunk in idolatry, and destitute of every liberal and pious sentiment, we should have resembled those who now claim our compassion, without being able to discover even a ray of light to guide us through the gloom. It is to the Gospel, and to that benevolence, with which it has been diffused, through grace, that we stand indebted for every thing valuable which we enjoy, above those who sit in Pagan darkness. The favours which we have received, must, therefore, incite us to gratitude, in proportion as we are sensible of the obligations we are under; and gratitude can never be expressed, while we refuse to rally round that sacred standard, which distinguishes the cause of the Lord Jesus Christ.

What shall we say, to urge you to promote your interest and discharge your duty? The voice of reason, the dictates of conscience, and the language of Revelation, unite their influence on this important point, and lead to one common issue. This is a point in which selfishness and generosity act in union with each other, and carry our views forward to eternity, where they shall have only one common name, which will be Love.

Indeed the recent benevolent exertions of our Friends, in the cause of Missions, fully assures us of their willingness to be workers together with God, in the diffusion of divine truth.— We are happy to say, that, within the last six months, Societies have been instituted at Leeds, Halifax, Hull, Sheffield, Redruth, and several other places, for the purpose of aiding our Missionary Fund, by weekly, monthly, quarterly, or annual Subscriptions.— The piety, zeal, and liberality of these Societies are unparalleled; and we anticipate the pleasure of announcing in our next Report, that through the assistance of these Societies, we shall have the means of sending other Missionaries to those dark parts of the earth that have not yet been favoured with the light of the Gospel.

That God may render your liberality more abundant, and cause its effects to be more diffusive, and more beneficial than in former years, is the earnest prayer, of

Your affectionate Brother,

And Servant in the Gospel,

ROBERT SMITH, Secretary.
